Hello, my name is Tony. I'm very glad to share my story with you.

Last summer I had the most amazing experience of my life. My dad's an engineer who works with green technology and he was sent by the university he works for to a small town. As it was the school holiday, he decided to take me with him. At first I wasn't too keen. What could I do in a country where I couldn't even speak the language? He told me that the town was an example of how people could live without destroying the environment. I began to take an interest in the trip, so I did some research. I found out that the town was founded in 1971 by a group of scientists and artists. It seemed to take forever, but finally when we arrived, I was amazed by how green it was and my dad explained that they had planted millions of trees and created a whole new forest. I was beginning to like this place.

D. Listen to the passage and complete the following sentences(听短文,用听到的单词完成下列句子。每空格限填一词)(共 10 分)

No matter how far you've travelled, there's always something special about coming home. It might be your own bed or your mum's dishes that might make you feel so happy and comfortable there.

Homesickness is something almost everyone suffers from. It's something you learn to deal with better as you grow older; from your first weekend away with school or a youth group, to a week-long holiday with friends, to moving out to university, it becomes ever easier. Although I'm used to travelling and living away from home, I always find I look forward to going home about a week before it's time.

Some tips to help with homesickness: focus on what you're doing and where you are. Remember that you'll probably arrive home, just do what you are doing right now! Think about all the good differences from home: you might not be able to afford your favourite foods in a restaurant, but this will force you to try new dishes or learn to cook new meals. Your new town may not be familiar, but perhaps it's more beautiful, has more shops. And although you'll miss friends and family, distance gives you the chance to appreciate the relationships you truly value.
